CLOSER LOOK: Avg. winning Beyer is 109; bad news for rivals is he may be getting BETTER; last 3 Beyer's are 100, 105 and 105 when he won the roses; recent Derby winners have done well when moving on to the Preakness recently, winning 9 of the last 18; going further back, however, takes some of the shine off Derby winners coming here (13 for last 36); Baffert has won 5 of these so he knows what he's doing and what works; style development (ability to rate) makes a world of difference; can either make the running or stalk and go, and his big G2 Rebel win shows he can flourish on wet going, too, as such a surface is a possibility; didn't exactly Seattle Slew 'em at CD so it's not as if he has much, if any, margin for error.

Suffered first loss in 7 starts in the Derby, at the hands of his very talented stablemate; did nothing wrong in defeat - set what for the Derby was a modest pace and stayed on well for 3rd; top Beyer of 106 (earned winning the G1 SA Derby) means he's got the ammo to do what's needed to win this; sire was dynamic, winning this race, too, and while this guy was on the lead in the SA Derby and G2 San Felipe he's by no means a need-the-lead type; Baffert has won 5 of these so he knows what it takes; Derby 3rds have won 3 of last 13 (Curlin, Afleet Alex, Timber Country); could give that number a boost.

Runs under the historic Calumet colors as he was purchased Wed.; remains with Lukas, who has the 2nd most Preakness wins among trainers (6), winning his most recent in 2013 with Oxbow; had a miserable time of it early in the Derby as he was jostled significantly going to the clubhouse turn; was never able to overcome it, finishing 13th; showed quality last fall - darn near beat Dortmund and Firing Line in the G1 Los Alamitos Futurity, beaten a head and a nose; trouble is, things haven't gone well of late; could it be too many of his peers have progressed past him in recent months?; could be; at least believers will get a nice price and it would be no shock for D. Wayne to try to win this the way he won with Oxbow - by putting this guy on the lead.

Derby 5th wasn't bad at all; was in the 2nd wave early after getting jostled around, and stayed there throughout in a decent effort; that run represented another step forward so he's heading the right way; still, that Beyer was a career top (95) and he'll need another big move forward as the big 3 have all hit triple digits on more than one occasion; nice to see he's run well on CD dirt, GP dirt and KEE dirt so odds are he'll handle this place; daddy produced 2013 G1 Kentucky Derby winner Orb, and Oxley won the Derby with Monarchos in 2001 (ran 6th in the Preakness).

Headed the right way, yes, but he's obviously biting off an awful lot as he goes from beating maidens, albeit very nicely, to facing G1 foes including the top 3 from the G1 Kentucky Derby; at least that April 23 win at KEE gives him something no one else in here has - a win at this exact distance; of course, the way the top 3 from the Derby as well as Danzig Moon handled that race's 10fs this trip will be no problem for them, so his advantage therein is negligible; does keep coming, does seem to be peaking and he since posted 2 very nice works at CD so he comes here at full-tilt, but considering the opposition and a top Beyer of 72 you can see the hurdles are many and significant.

Owner won this with Red Bullet way back in 2000, though Red Bullet was surely more accomplished than this guy; that smart Federico Tesio win April 18 gives him something, at least, no one else in here possesses - a win over this track; even so, the Beyer (91) leaves him with a lot of work to do if he's to be a factor; at least that represented a step forward and he's trending the right way; but the last locally based runner to take this was quite some time ago (another Tesio winner, Deputed Testamony, 1983).

Must be a tad bittersweet for the owners to come here, as it's their first time back since their Kentucky Derby winner Barbaro came here only to break down right out of the gate and later lose his life to laminitis; done nothing wrong in 5 starts, finishing in the tri in each; stalked the pace in the G3 Lexington April 11, took over and drew off; connections specifically said they would skip the Derby and target this, so the plan has apparently come to fruition; that Lexington Beyer (98) puts him within earshot of the big boys here; speed to get position but is not a need-the-lead type; but if he goes to the lead, can he survive what will surely be significant pressure from the big 3, and if he doesn't go for the lead, can he outkick them, hmmm?

Derby was a beaut - dogged pacesetter Dortmund, who had his number in the couple races prior, got the better of that guy into the lane, went on with it and made 'Pharoah work hard to get the roses; coming back quickly is a concern as he's been best with time between races, but hey, they knew coming into this what the schedule was, that this race was just 2 weeks after the Derby so they've handled him conservatively so he had enough gas in the tank to go after this race; bad news, though, is the Derby 2nds haven't done well in this race - you have to go back to Prairie Bayou in 1993 for a Derby 2nd who then won this, with Derby 2nds 0 for 11 here since. -Michael Hammersly
